Sections World's leading luxury business publication My Account | Log Out New York, March 22, 2022

Home Industry sectors Channels Opinion Resources Subscribe Search

Comment

March 21,2022

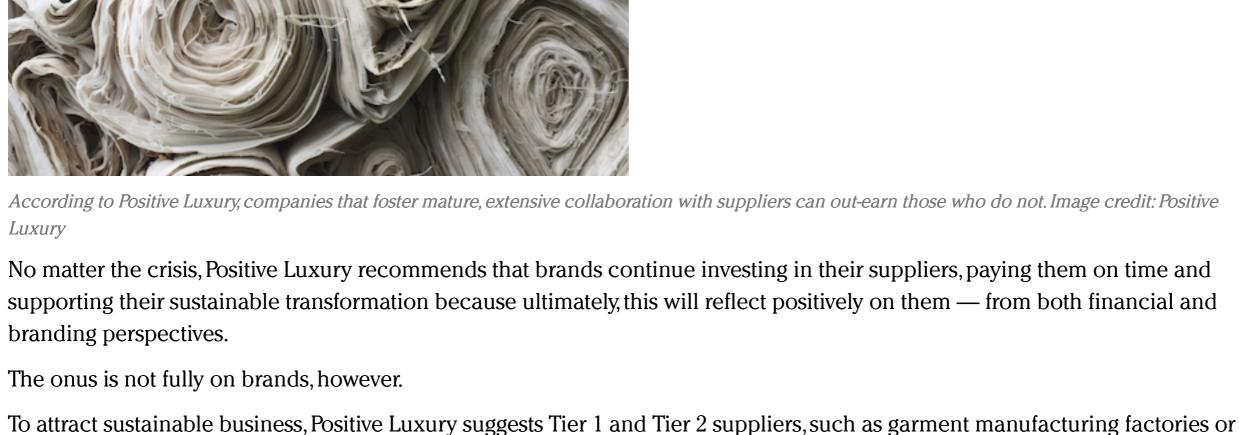

their businesses independently of manufacturers.

transform the supply chain for a sustainable future. To do so, both parties must provide transparency to mitigate greenwashing, obtain certifications proving environmental and social impact and embrace all opportunities and challenges that come with

"When brands and suppliers embrace each other as full partners – collaborating to innovate – both critical parts of the luxury industry will have the opportunity to remake the entire global supply chain to align with positive planet- and human-centric missions," said Diana Verde Nieto, cofounder of Positive Luxury, in a statement. Future of sourcing

Mutually beneficial brand-supplier relationships will depend on supply chain resilience, risk preparedness, community investment and innovation. Consumers do not trust brands that claim to not know when environmental or humanitarian oversight or abuse occurs in their supply chains. To tackle blind spots, brands should publish audits of their suppliers, such as location, address and employment statistics for increased transparency. Additionally, many brands stopped paying suppliers when COVID-19 forced global order cancellations — moves that were met fabric mills, must investigate their own supply chains and form strategic partnerships with ESG-compliant businesses. For the luxury sector, specifically, legacy is paramount, so supplies must invest in their own prestige to attract the likes of Last year in its environmental impact report, Gucci unveiled a partnership to financially support its suppliers. Image credit: Gucci Further, as sustainability requirements only become stricter in the next few years, brands will seek out suppliers with the necessary certifications. Suppliers should aim to achieve certifications now to prepare for future business partnerships. Attaining these requirements is not an immediate process, either, so suppliers must document and share each step of their journey toward sustainability, as brands will look for communicative partners. Leading organizations According to Positive Luxury, when brands see their suppliers as equal partners and provide the necessary resources to help production models and equitable employment practices (see story).

them thrive, the relationships become far more mutually beneficial. In 2021, Italian fashion house Gucci launched a project with Italian bank Intesa Sanpaolo, allowing its Italian suppliers to finance

Within one year of the initiative's launch, more than 150 Italian suppliers from Gucci's supply chain have benefitted from more than 230 million euros, or $254 million at current exchange, in loans from the bank. French luxury house Chanel owns 41 of its suppliers, with seven manufacturers acquired in the last two years alone, and approximately 33 percent of the brand's manufacturing now takes place in-house.

The partnership focuses on three main areas including building an education and sustainability leadership program and a series of innovation "sprints," with each lasting up to 18 months. Each sprint will pose questions and pool together insights and feedback from experts across the university (see story).

Email this Print Reprints Download PDF

sustainability education and leadership program for employees, aiming to implement innovative ideas and prototypes.

Share your thoughts. Click here « Previous article LATEST HEADLINES Next article »

• The Macallan explores passion for excellence with violinist • Subscribe now: Full access to 90,000+ articles, reports, videos and images Alexander McQueen, Versace, Goldman Sachs, Hennessy, Four Seasons and Artsy

More Videos >>>

Back to top

• Four Seasons, Guerlain partner for wellness experience • Artsy announces NFT benefit auction

Hennessy debuts forest regeneration program

Vestiaire Collective reveals new style icons in refreshed campaign

Affluents seeking bespoke, weekend-long amenities for spring weddings

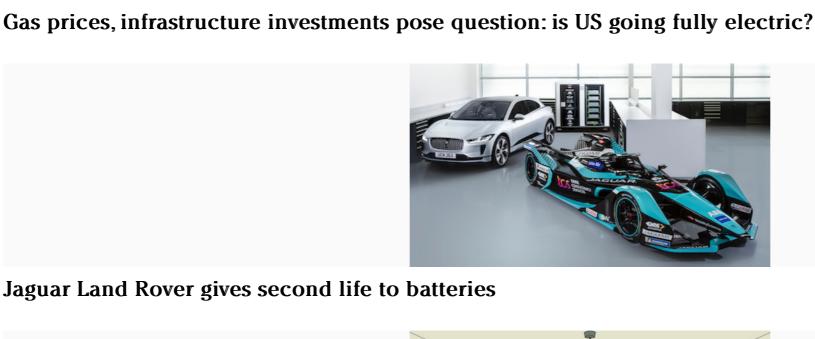

- 2. Alexander McQueen secures new CEO, former heads to Versace 3. Valentino, LVMH, Mulberry and Farfetch
- 6. Valentino takes over SoHo to celebrate Rendez-Vous collection 7. Four Seasons, Guerlain partner for wellness experience
- 9. Artsy announces NFT benefit auction 10. Alexander McQueen, Versace, Goldman Sachs, Hennessy, Four Seasons and Artsy

5. Mercedes-Benz dreams bigger with A$AP Rocky

8. How luxury is supporting relief efforts in Ukraine

- The Macallan explores passion for excellence with violinist • The Macallan explores passion for excellence with violinist
- Vacheron Constantin collaborates with Abbey Road Studios on mentorship program Hennessy inspires young talent, spotlights Ukrainian musician Balenciaga continues on a global musical journey • Spaced out: the booming business of space tourism
- Hermès cheers on craftsmanship in playful film • Porsche, Pixar bring beloved character to life for charity • Louis Vuitton revisits longtime connection with 'Squid Game' star • Carolina Herrera celebrates defiance, friendship with new cologne
- MORE IN SUSTAINABILITY

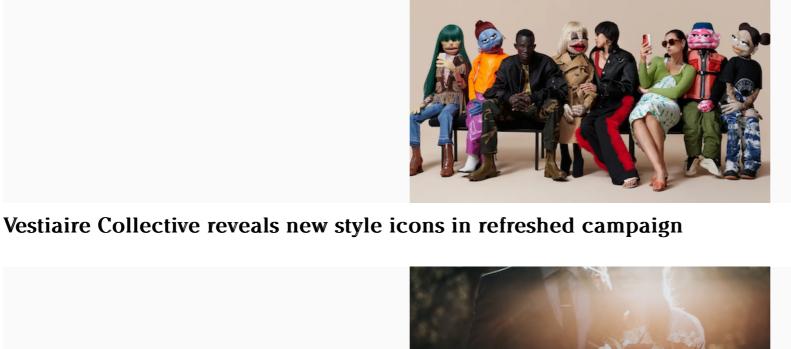

Collaboration is crucial for future of sustainable sourcing

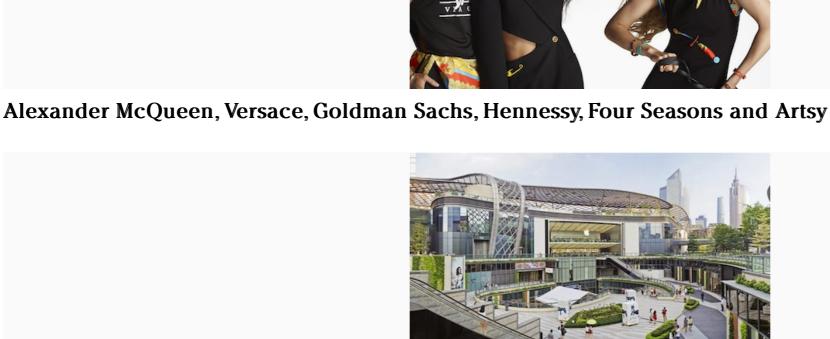

M&BX 524E

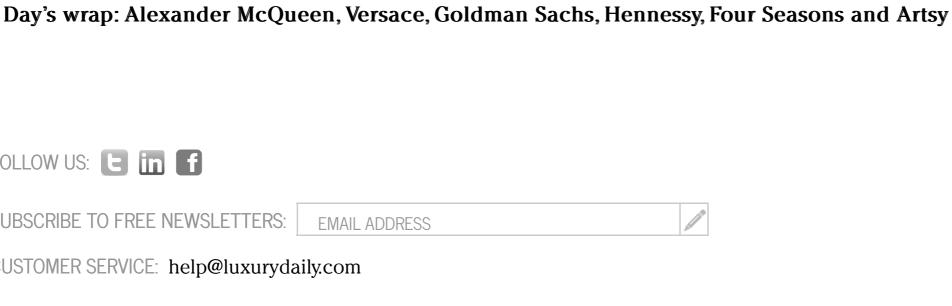

Luxury fashion continues full-speed in circular direction

Aston Martin developing high-performance battery

Affluents seeking bespoke, weekend-long amenities for spring weddings

Subscribe ADVERTISING: ads@napean.com NEWS TIPS: news@napean.com Q SEARCH: SEARCH

EMAIL ADDRESS Channels Opinion Resources Advertise Cookie Policy Luxury Daily is published each business day. Thank you for reading us. Your feedback is welcome.

Back to top Special Reports Services About Us Events Subscriber Agreement and Terms of Use Contact Us Customer Service Center

Back to top

Luxury Daily[®] Q Email Print Reprints ARTICLE TOOLS SPONSOR 4NFC SUSTAINABILITY Collaboration is crucial for future of sustainable sourcing

Suppliers are the backbone of the luxury market. Image credit: Positive Luxury

By NORA HOWE As consumers increasingly demand brand responsibility and find more ways of obtaining transparency, labels cannot operate According to a new sourcing report from Positive Luxury, collaboration across all operations is necessary to disrupt and reshaping the supply chain.

with immense criticism.

sustainable luxury companies.

sustainable business transformation. The collaboration funded initiatives such as waste reduction, energy efficiency, circular

In December 2021, the brand unveiled 19M, a new design campus to physically house 11 of Chanel's subsidiaries. Last year, the French brand also launched a three-year sustainability partnership with Cambridge University to craft a

Is Guangzhou the future of luxury in China's Bay Area? • Day's wrap: Alexander McQueen, Versace, Goldman Sachs, Hennessy, Four Seasons and Artsy

MOST POPULAR 1. Day's wrap: Alexander McQueen, Versace, Goldman Sachs, Hennessy, Four Seasons and Artsy 4. Vacheron Constantin collaborates with Abbey Road Studios on mentorship program

VIDEOS

Hennessy debuts forest regeneration program

RECENT ARTICLES

The Macallan explores passion for excellence with violinist

Is Guangzhou the future of luxury in China's Bay Area?

FOLLOW US: E in f

Home

SUBSCRIBE TO FREE NEWSLETTERS: CUSTOMER SERVICE: help@luxurydaily.com Industry Sectors Log Out Copyright Policy

© 2022 Napean LLC. All rights reserved.